COL. CY. PECK, V.C. IS APPOINTED MEMBER OF PENSION COURT

Popular Member for Islands and War Hero Nominated to New Tribunal

LEGION HEAD ALSO ON JUDICIAL BOARD

Vancouver Man Succeeds Hon. Ian Mackenzie as Advocate for Soldiers

LEUT.-COL. CYRUS W. PECK, V.C., D.S.O., member for the Islands constituency in the Legislative Assembly, and former Member of Parliament for Skeena district, one of the best loved battalion commanders of the Canadian Corps, has been appointed as Judge of the Pensions Court of Canada, representing British Columbia. Announcement to this effect came from Ottawa today.

The appointment, which is a permanent one, may necessitate the opening of The Islands constituency, although, under a ruling given several years ago by the law officers of the Provincial Government when Hon. Ian Mackenzie was appointed as soldiers' advocate, it is not clear. Premier Tolmie was absent from the city last night and could not be communicated with on the matter. Hon. Ian Mackenzie held office under the Dominion Government as soldier advocate and sat at the same time as member of the Legislature for Vancouver.

Announcement was made at the Dominion capital of the full personnel of the Pensions Court as well as new soldiers' advocates, as follows:

NAME PRESIDENT LATER
Lieut.-Col. R. Lafliche, D.S.O., Dominion president of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, and Col. L. P. Sherwood, both of Ottawa, have been appointed members of the Pensions Court provided for by pension legislation passed at the last regular session of Parliament. The president of the court will be appointed later.

Lieut.-Col. Thomas Morrison, V.D., of Hamilton, has been appointed chairman of the Pensions Tribunal. Continued on Page 5, Column 5

SAYS FASCISTS ARE BULWARK AGAINST REDS

Hitler States Growing Party Is Europe's Protection Against Bolshevism

FORESEES VALUE IN GERMAN FRIENDSHIP

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The fascists of Germany were described by their leader, Adolf Hitler, as Europe's future bulwark against the menace of Bolshevism.

In a special interview granted in Leipzig to Rothay Reynolds, correspondent of The London Daily Mail.

"If Europe decided to make Germany serve a life sentence then she must face the danger of having an embittered nation, desperate to the verge of crime, in her midst," he told Reynolds.

"What that would mean a child can guess—Bolshevism. To have a strong party in Germany which will form a bulwark against Bolshevism is in the interests not only of England but of all nations.

"You may have difficulties before you, and the time may come when German friendship will not be without its value."

GERMANY RAISES DUTY ON WHEAT

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—The official Reichs Anzeiger today published a ministerial order, effective tomorrow, raising the import duty on wheat from fifteen to eighteen and one-half marks per hundred kilograms.

It also was announced that the quarterly duty-free admission of 12,500 tons of frozen meat will cease September 30, and will be replaced by a system of a distribution of cheap home-bred meat for which 10,000 marks have been appropriated until March 31, 1931.

NAVY CLOTH ONLY RELIC OF FRANKLIN

No Written Records of Ill-Fated Expedition Found in Arctic by Burwash

CAIRN FOUND TO CONTAIN FABRIC

Reports of Previous Examination of Locality Proved to Be Unfounded

OTTAWA, Sept. 27.—Rugged and weather beaten through years of exploration work in the Arctic islands off Canada's mainland, Major L. T. Burwash reached Ottawa today following an epic flight over the area in which, eighty-three years ago, the survivors of the ill-fated expedition of Sir John Franklin met their deaths. For more than half a century a veil of Arctic silence had shrouded all record of the party which set out in two ships, Erebus and Terror, to find the Northwest Passage.

Major Burwash in his recently concluded trip was likewise unsuccessful in discovering any documents relating to the expedition, but he did find relics in the form of graves, traces of long-abandoned camps, pieces of naval cloth, coal and ropes.

SALVAGED PLANE
One of the most remarkable features of Major Burwash's 2,500-mile flight was that it was made in a salvaged plane which for eleven months had lain exposed to the Arctic weather at Dease Point, on Queen Maud Gulf. This machine was one which had been used by Colonel MacAlpine, president of the Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration Company, last year, and which was "lost" for several weeks with a temporary disappearance of the party.

The course of the flight which took the major to the relics of the Franklin expedition was from Bernard Harbor, northwest of Coppermine, along the coast of Victoria Island to Peterson Bay. Refueling there, the party, which comprised Pilot W. E. Gibbs, of the Western Canada Airways, and Richard Finnie, of the Department of the Interior, in addition to Major Burwash, the Earl and his party, landed on Boothia Peninsula, and thence to King William Land.

FIRE LOSS IN B.C. IS LARGE

Quarter Billion Feet of Timber, Valued at $1,000,000, Destroyed

OUTBREAKS INCREASED

Close to quarter of a billion feet of timber from British Columbia forests will be written off this year as the aggregate result of forest fires, it is estimated by officials of the provincial forestry service. Though the number of fires was 2,219, as compared with 2,011 in 1929, and 1,580 in 1928, the loss to merchantable timber will be about the same as in the previous year.

"It may now be considered the fire season is definitely ended for this year. Fire occurrence has been 19 per cent higher than the average for the last ten years. The hazardous period has been longer than usual by about twenty days." This statement in the weekly bulletin, issued by the Department of Lands, summarizes the position.

The actual loss of timber in dollars and cents will not be known for some time yet, but rough estimates place the damage at close to $1,000,000.

Officials of the service commented on the apparent tendency on the part of the general public to cooperate with forestry efforts to hold the annual fire damage to a minimum.

Establishment of Virtual Dictatorship by Bruening Is Predicted in Germany
BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Chancellor Bruening's word to party leaders in the Reichstag, when his new Government programme is ready for an announcement, will be "take it or leave it." If the Reichstag should refuse its support, the chancellor, whose faith in his own financial ability is high, will simply ask President von Hindenburg to adjourn Parliament.

Friends of the chancellor assert this programme, although dictatorial in the extreme, has been decided upon as the shortest route to attainment of his aims for restoration of Germany to economic stability.

WILL EFFECT HIS PLANS
Once the President has adjourned Parliament, observers said today, Dr. Bruening's resourcefulness will find a way to prevent its reconvening until his Government's programme has been put fully into effect.

Opens Service to Salt Spring Island

THE steamer Cy Peck, of the ferry type, is named after Col. Cyrus W. Peck, V.C., M.P.P. for Islands. She is a staunch vessel, solidly built and capable of making the journey from Swartz Bay to Fulford in thirty-five minutes. The ferry is equipped with all modern comforts, pleasant lounge and commodious deck space. The Cy Peck is a new boat, passed and approved by the underwriters. One of the features of the ship is the ease of loading and unloading autos under their own power and by their own drivers.

New Ferry Service Opens Salt Spring Island to Traffic

The Gulf Islands Ferry Service Co., Ltd., establishes Important Route to Scenic Group in Lower Gulf—Ceremonies Mark Inauguration

AN event of premier importance to the province, because of its far-reaching possibilities for the ultimate development of the isolated islands adjacent to Victoria and the southern tip of Vancouver Island as tourist resorts and the encouragement of agricultural pursuits, was historically celebrated yesterday with the inauguration of the Swartz Bay-Fulford Harbor ferry service, and the sailing of the vessel Cy Peck on its maiden trip to Salt Spring Island.

The establishment of the new route opens an avenue of marine transportation which may, in time, be extended to include all the islands in the lower gulf group, the natural playground for tourists from the South.

Possessing as it does a climate unsurpassed for its evenness of temperatures, its beauty of Nature's handiwork, untouched in the march of progress, and providing rest, health and recreation, Salt Spring Island is considered a gem among the coming resorts of the Pacific Coast.

ISLANDS' ATTRACTIONS
Within two hours of the city of Victoria, the island possesses sufficient of the primitive to enter the lover of the out-of-doors and just enough modernity to satisfy the average individual. It has hotels situated in pleasant surroundings, natural bathing beaches, full-sized golf course, an abundance of fishing, ample facilities for boating or yachting, good roads and winding pathways leading to the groves of giant firs, hunting on small or large scale, and the generous hospitality of its islanders.

Persons Late In Vera Cruz Are Arrested

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Sept. 27.—Night life in this city is spoiled because the authorities arrest all persons whom they find on the streets late at night and put them to work with a road construction gang. As a result, ten-mile roads between Vera Cruz and Boca de Rio is being built without labor costs.

Because of the campaign to get free labor, theatres, saloons and dance halls are virtually deserted after sunset.

EARTHQUAKE IN ANDES

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—Fragmentary reports reaching Salta today brought first news of an earthquake in the Andes Mountains last Tuesday, in whose several villages were either raised or severely damaged. At least one death occurred, that of a woman.

RESERVE RIGHTS ON PEACE RIVER BLOCK

Prospecting for Coal and Petroleum Prohibited by Province in New Area

Prospecting for coal and petroleum in the Peace River Block is prohibited by order in council, passed by the Government last week. The restriction is the same as is already applied to other parts of the area, which were under administration by the province before the Peace River Block was transferred from Dominion control.

Extension of the prohibition on coal and petroleum discovery to the newly acquired lands was brought about as a matter of course and will likely be continued while the future disposition of the area is under advisement.

Germany Raises Duty

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—The official Reich Anzeiger today published a ministerial order, effective tomorrow, raising the import duty of wheat from fifteen to eighteen and one-half marks per hundred kilograms.

DEPOSED PRESIDENT ILL

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—The newspaper La Razon today reported that former President Hipolito Yrigoyen is gravely ill aboard the cruiser General Belgrano, on which he has been confined by the Provisional Government that overthrew him this month.

Bobby Jones Again Winner of Amateur Golf Championship

Victory in United States Series Gives Young Georgian Lawyer All Crowns of the Fairways and Greens—Defeats E. V. Horns Easly Before Gallery of 15,000

Won All Major Tournaments of Year

MERION CRICKET CLUB, ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 27.—On the famous east course of Merion, where as a shock-haired youthful phenomenon of fourteen he first appeared in national championship competition, Robert T. Jones, Jr., today completed the greatest march of conquest in golf history.

By the one-sided margin of 8 up and 7 to go, Jones brushed aside twenty-two-year-old Eugene Vanderpool Horns, of Englewood, N.J., to win the United States amateur championship and score his fourth straight national victory for the year—the "grand slam" of golf.

There are no more golfing worlds left to conquer for the young Georgian. It was a shock-haired youthful phenomenon of fourteen he first appeared in national championship competition, Robert T. Jones, Jr., today completed the greatest march of conquest in golf history.

WAS EASY TRIUMPH

Bobby's triumph today, after a solid week of competition, was by far the easiest of the quartette he scored to sweep everything in sight for the campaign of 1930.

It was just a breeze by comparison with the battles he waged earlier to capture the British Open, the British Amateur and the American Open.

There was drama and a surging, rushing, and at the finish an uncontrollable crowd of perhaps 15,000 spectators, running wild as they sought to see golfing history made, such as may never be repeated again, but there were few if any competitive thrills to a final match that was just another big parade for the all conquering son of the South.

WAS NOT MATCH

The end was in sight when Jones finished the morning eighteen holes of the thirty-six-hole final seven up. Good and game a young golfer as is Horns, he was no match whatever for the stocky king of the links. It was just a question of how long it would go in the afternoon, and Bobby kept the galloping gallery in suspense longer than it was anticipated, largely because "Calamity Jane" the Jones putter, was far from her usually constant self.

FORMER RELIEF OFFICER GIVEN TWO-YEAR TERM

G. D. Ireland Pleads Guilty to Seven Charges in Vancouver Court

JUDGE CONSIDERS AGE IN PASSING SENTENCE

VANCOUVER, Sept. 27.—Sentence of two years in New Westminster penitentiary was imposed in County Court today by Judge Cayley on Rev. George D. Ireland, aged sixty-four, former city relief officer, who pleaded guilty to seven charges of theft and two of corruption.

The theft charges related to moneys entrusted to Ireland as city relief officer, and aggregated $3,715. The two corruption charges concerned a 5 per cent commission which he accepted from F. F. Kennedy, proprietor of Wonder Lunch, and from G. S. Wrinkle, proprietor of Log Cabin Cafe, for placing city relief business with them.

Covering a five-year period, the charges against Ireland related to his time as relief officer, and were pleaded by him in his own defence.

In a low voice and with bowed head, Ireland pleaded guilty to each of the seven charges.

GOOD MAN GONE WRONG

"It is a very difficult case," commented Judge Cayley. "He is sixty-four years of age. I feel disposed to deal very leniently with him. I have to consider the kind of man before me. I believe that this is a good man gone wrong. He has been subjected to temptation in handling moneys passing through his hands. The charges amount to conversion of the moneys to his own use."

"He has got into a habit of sticky fingers, taking a little here and a little there, but at bottom he is not a criminal type. If he has courage there is plenty of time for him to come back and be a good citizen. I think two years in the penitentiary should be sufficient."

A sentence of two years was imposed on each charge, the sentences running concurrently.

Installation of officers and presentation of prizes won by members during the past year formed the principal business at the meeting of the Victoria Horticultural Society held Friday evening at the Sons of Canada Hall, View Street.

An excellent representation of the club membership of 304 was present, and proceedings assumed a very happy social character at the close of the evening, when refreshments were served and an auction of fruit, cake and flowers was conducted by Frederick Landsberg. A musical programme of pleasing character added to the amenities of the occasion.

Frederick Landsberg, the retiring president, was in the chair, and in his short farewell address congratulated the members who had been successful in winning prizes during the year, particularly complimenting J. Naysmith and W. Walters for winning first and third prizes, respectively, in the Vancouver Island home garden contest conducted by the Vancouver Island Horticultural Society.

MR. BOULTER THANKED

Among the retiring members of the executive the president singled out for special mention F. Boulter, the secretary, who had given invaluable help all through the year. In welcoming and introducing the new members of the executive Mr. Landsberg expressed congratulations on the programme of speakers they had prepared for the 1930-31 season. Members and friends were urged to attend meetings. The club membership showed an increase of 186 within the year.

Another subject of special congratulation was the result of the society's effort at school grounds improvement.

INSTANT PRESIDENT

The new president, Dr. A. G. Price, elected at the meeting on September 1, was installed by Mayor Ansonb with amusing rites, other members of the incoming executive being Mrs. E. W. NEW PROCESS PAVING FOR DOUGLAS STREET

To provide a non-slip surface in street paving, the City Engineer's Department of this city is laying a special section of asphalt between Port and Humboldt on Douglas Street as an experiment. Instead of a smooth rolling for a finish, the top dressing consists of a layer of finely crushed rock which is rolled into the under layer of asphalt, thus making a rough surface. Two-thirds of the section of street has already been paved and the remainder will be completed in about a week's time. The work is in charge of F. M. Preston, city engineer.

CANADA IS RECEIVING MORE JAMAICA TRADE AS RESULT OF TARIFFS

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—Canada is getting all kinds of business that formerly went to the United States, because of Jamaica's gratitude to Canada for recent tariff preference, according to L. T. Kennedy, prominent business man of Kingston, Jamaica, who arrived here Friday.

"We in Jamaica are very grateful to Canada for her preference in fruits and vegetables, and as a result, millions of dollars' worth of business which formerly went to the United States is now being diverted to Canada. We buy a great deal of flour from you, among other things," he said.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 27.—The largest still ever uncovered in the West was seized today by customs officers aided by Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The 2,000-gallon equipment was located in a hidden shack near Springfield, Manitoba.

Four men, alleged to have been operating the still, were arrested. The machine was said to have been turning out 150 gallons of alcohol daily.

The presentation of medals will be made by H. T. Ravenhill, chief commissioner of Boy Scouts of Vancouver Island.

CAPITAL BEAUTIFICATION

The request that has been made from time to time to the Provincial Government for assistance to Victoria similar to that given to Ottawa by the Federal Government in the matter of civic beautification is one that should not have remained unanswered for so long. The Government itself, through the years, has done a good deal towards the beautification of the Parliament Buildings grounds. It has worked proceeding continuously for this purpose. It has purchased additional land in the vicinity of the Parliament Buildings, presumably for utilization eventually as sites for new Government offices. The hope is that this ground, too, will eventually be beautified and governmental activities centred in a setting that will be unequalled in any of the provincial capitals.

As well as what is doing the Government can be expected to assist in the general beautification of the capital. The scheme which has an immediate appeal to our citizens is the development of Beacon Hill Park and of the foreshore lands running from Menzies Street at Dallas Road to Clover Point. The latter area is now the property of the Dominion Government, but Mr. D. B. Plunkett, the member for Victoria, is making the proposal to the Federal authorities that it should be handed to the municipality without reservation. This course will probably be adopted and then the city will be able to outline a comprehensive development plan which can be undertaken by instalment each year. It is in this plan that the Provincial Government is expected to assist by the provision of an annual grant to the municipality.

When this matter of provincial assistance for civic development was brought up on previous occasions there was no concrete plan to propose to the British Columbia Government. Now such a plan is maturing and a specific grant is to be sought. This city has an undoubted claim for provincial assistance in civic development. In Vancouver the Government has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in laying out the University endowment lands, and this is an outlay that will never be returnable in full to the provincial exchequer. What Victoria seeks is a mere fleecing as compared with what has been spent in Vancouver.

SPROUT LAKE-TOFINO ROAD

During his visit to British Columbia, Mr. E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, conferred with Mr. N. S. Loughheed, the Provincial Minister of Public Works, on the desirability of building the Sproat Lake-Tofino Road. This is a project that has been occupying the attention of the Provincial Government for some time past. It is the logical highway to give West Coast residents connections with the existing road system of the Island. It is a highway that would make an instant appeal to tourist traffic, for it would provide access to some of the best scenery on the West Coast.

The road to Tofino would bring Long Beach within reach of motorists. Mr. Beatty expressed himself as greatly impressed with the possibilities of making Long Beach into a resort, and there is no doubt that some day, possibly as soon as road connection is provided, it will be the site of a chalet and recreational facilities. The beach is the finest in Canada. It possesses, from the standpoint of a summer resort, unrivalled opportunities for development. Now that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is interesting itself, and that the project of the Sproat Lake-Tofino Road is backed up by the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, there are hopes that the Provincial Government will be persuaded that the project should rank foremost in any new programme of road construction in this section of the province.

IMPORT BOARDS

Apparently the theory of regulating trade by means of import boards is favored by the British Government. That would imply that the desirability of putting this plan into practice will be injected into the forthcoming Imperial Conference. The British Government regards import boards as an instalment of Socialism, what The Saturday Review describes as a move "towards some unknown and uncharted Socialist haven, where young professors will be found to believe they can control the world's trade in wheat and wool from an armchair in Whitehall."

If there is one principle more than any other, the knowledge of which should dominate discussions at the Imperial Conference, it is that experience has proved that the power of any Government to control international trade is severely limited. Mr. George Broomhall, writing in The Observer, says: "The rich and powerful Government of the United States set out to improve the position of the farmers by raising the price of agricultural products. The chief officials also gave advice freely and often, but despite all this prices declined and kept down. The United States Government has acknowledged that its scheme is a failure, and it has failed because the home markets cannot be controlled without causing stagnation in the foreign trade."

War-time experience proved conclusively that State buying of commodities illustrated the reverse of economy. Under a wheat import board there is hardly a doubt that Great Britain would pay more for her wheat; that is to say that the exporters would pay that. In Great Britain at present where the wheat originates. That is the condition when due allowance is made for handling charges and freight. Mr. Broomhall says that there is no scheme of Government buying that could hope to provide wheat for the people of Great Britain as cheap or as satisfactorily as it is being supplied at present.

In Great Britain an import wheat board would send up the price of bread. Mr. Arthur Holgate, writing in The London News-Chronicle, says that import boards would be created to raise the price of wheat to the miller; to benefit 4 per cent of the farmers at the expense of the rest of the community. Moreover, such a board would buy dumped produce and sell it at enhanced prices and assist the farmers with the "profits." The "profits" in question would be paid by the taxpayers. Presumably import boards would deal with all staple commodities, with imports purchased at world prices, and the home producers would be subsidized. A danger would arise, according to Mr. Holgate, that one Dominion might be favored more than another and relations might become strained, with the result that there might be discrimination against exports.

The natural implication of import boards is that export boards should be established as well, and in the long run that would mean that whatever State introduced the innovation would be attempting to control world prices and supplies. "The proposal," says Mr. Holgate, "if carried to its logical conclusion, would mean complete State control and ownership of all the nation's needs and resources and the elimination of all forms of private enterprise." It is hardly conceivable that, whatever the views of the British Labor Government whose goal is "Socialism in our time," the Governments of the Overseas Dominions will subscribe to such a doctrine. It would mean the introduction of war-time economic conditions into the realm of peace, and what would be more serious still, it would build up hostilities which could hardly fail to be provocative of another great war.

PERSONALITY IN ADMINISTRATION

A Prussian official says that the essential difference between the British and German administrative services is that, while the latter is concerned with the routine of administration the former is concerned with the art. Great Britain pays the greatest attention to the personality of the administrator, whereas in Germany this factor receives little attention.

This contrast was made the theme of a lecture given by Mr. Mackay, of Adelaide, at the Summer Conference of the Institute of Public Administration at New College, Oxford. The point he endeavors to clear up is a definition of that elusive quality "personality." He believes it is a simple thing to detect. It is a quality which makes people warm towards the possessor and self-confidence in him. On the other hand, the individual without personality, "has gestures and mannerisms which worry us, his nature is full of rough corners which thrust themselves rudely into us; we say he is queer, that he is unduly sensitive, that one never knows when he is going to tread on his mental corns."

There is disharmony in one without personality when he undertakes the task of administrative office. It takes its rise in fear and in a feeling of inferiority. Wherever administration is undertaken by such men unfortunate results ensue. There is no greater asset in administration than personality. It is greater than an informed mind. Information, says Mr. Mackay, can be purchased; a personality cannot be bought, but he admits it can be developed by association with men of personality. Mr. Mackay then goes on to say:

"The motto 'Manners maketh the man,' contains within its brief compass the essential meaning which we all have in mind. Manners properly conceived, mean the harmony of the 'persona' and the inner self; if they sit becomingly upon a man, they win for him affection and trust, they illuminate his nature so that he becomes a man of light and leading. Manners bring about the concurrent adaptation of congenial souls which is the basis of all true administration."

Mr. Neville Chamberlain asks why should the Mother Country not take a leaf out of the Canadian book and introduce an emergency tariff to stimulate British industry. He says this is what the British Conservatives will do if they are elected to office. The statement is portentous. It indicates that protection will be the issue of the next election campaign in Great Britain. The pronouncement is of sufficient importance to exercise a definite influence on the discussions of the Imperial Conference on trade matters. Mr. Bennett has struck a note which will be heard to the uttermost ends of the Empire.

All the world is discovering anew that any diplomatic connection with Soviet Russia brings disturbance in its train. In trade matters there is no guarantee of honest dealing, while official connections give Bolshevism the chance to increase its propaganda to promote revolution elsewhere.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

And a perpetual feast of nectar's sweets,
Where no rude market morn
And fills the air with herbage's fragrance —Milton.

And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the day
Shall leave their seats like the Arab,
And so silently steal away.
—Longfellow.

It is rather an aged joke, that one about the Chicago stockyards. You remember the joke, of course—that the extremely efficient and very economical slaughtermen of the stockyards can every part of the pig but the squeal. There is a rather witty sequel to that story—that the radio stations in Chicago capture the squeal of the pig put on the air wave programmes than the majority of the stations of the United States and some of the stations of Canada.

Manufacturers of radio sets are beginning to advertise extensively their new machines. They all say that the new machines have been equipped with vast improvements as compared with the machines of yesterday. Some of them say that their products for the present year are the most wonderful machines in the matter of tone, color, sensitivity, selectivity, and other superlative qualities, ever placed in the shops of dealers. We do not doubt for one moment that all these claims will be established by demonstration. But of what use to a radio fan is the best set in the world if the programmes for the coming season are going to be as rotten (kindly excuse the expression) as the programmes for the latter part of this season have been?

In this matter we are speaking of writing by the programme, for we admit with shame being one of the great multitude of radio fans. And for months we have turned on the juice on our set with fear and trembling, knowing that the sounds which were sure to come over the air would be more nervously excruciating than the squealing of a drove of pigs undergoing the process of being canned in the renowned stockyards of the even more renowned city of Chicago. If we had our choice we would rather listen to a speech of notorious Big "Bill," the Mayor of Chicago, than to the weird notes of the growling, moaning and screaming tenors and sopranos whose voices rend the air and torture the nerves of listeners in for more than three-fourths of the time. And for another fourth of the time the announcers of most of the stations are extolling the virtues of some quick medicine, the super-quality of some tooth paste or tooth brush, or giving assurance of affluence almost immediately if you buy lots in some Southern suburb.

We shall be told, of course, that the programmes are cheap. That is true—and they have all the qualities of cheap things. They cost nothing, and they are worth less than nothing. We shall also be told that the fault is not with the programmes, but with the selector of the programmes. There is a measure of truth in that apology, too—for there are many excellent programmes on the air, but they are rare, a great deal rarer than they used to be when the sets were not nearly as good as they are today, but when the industry of broadcasting was not so thoroughly organized.

No station can broadcast for twenty-four hours a day without utilizing some rubbish. The broadcasting system of this continent as a consequence of the desire of the people to get something for nothing has been reduced to the level of marathon dances and free-living champagne competitions. The broadcasting stations stretch out their programmes for the same reason that Amos and Andy curtail their periods of witty and humorous exchanges to a few minutes a day and the funny pictorial stories in the papers probably never will be brought to a climax.

The programmes are continuous because "there is money in them." If there is little merit in them. The witty and humorous exchanges are short because to make them long would speedily exhaust the material from which they are made and also the mine of wealth said to be in them. Jiggs and Maggie and certain of their contemporaries appear destined to achieve immortality. To kill and bury them, with no hope of resurrection, would cost a mint of money.

It is said readers of the newspapers want the funny pictures. We do not believe listeners want the kind of programmes they are getting. We cannot believe that the American people, literally rolling in wealth, would object to paying something for really meritorious radio programmes if the matter were placed before them in an intelligible and convincing manner. And we know that the Canadian people do not want the kind of radio programmes they are compelled to listen to if they want to listen at all. If the manufacturers of radio sets of the continent were to take this consideration, we are almost sure something could be done about it, and if it sometimes could be done it would be greatly to the advantage of both the radio set manufacturers and their customers.

How B.C. Joined Canada

Story of Confederation as Told by The Colonist, Which Championed the Cause of Union

By NINA NAPIER, M.A.

PART XII

Colonial Finances and the Economy of Confederation

ALTHOUGH the Dominion of Canada was now established, and among the members of its Parliament there were many who supported the proposed union of British Columbia, there was little of a practical nature done in the colony itself for a long time to further that union. The colonists were far from unanimous as to its desirability, and many were of the opinion that no good could be accomplished by haste.

To a large extent this may be explained by the fact that the public mind was not yet fully informed on the merits of the scheme of Confederation, although there was unanimous agreement on the demerits of the existing system of government. The colony was not only badly governed, but very much over-governed by an administration far too cumbersome and costly, and unsuited to a limited population. A correspondent to the press observed that at one time twelve by twenty, simply furnished, presided over by a respectable old gentleman, assisted by a clerk or two and a messenger, would have been much more in keeping with conditions in the colony than the present host of officials.

The Government was criticized further, for trying, in the interests of preservation, to conceal the true state of its finances from the Colonial Secretary in London. To cover the results of mismanagement, it was still attempting to show the colony was solvent, whereas, in reality, it was borrowing money in London at twelve per cent, to pay the interest accruing on a loan obtained at six per cent. The Home Government should be told, claimed The Colonist, that British Columbia was not rolling in wealth, and able to pay a portion of the national debt of Great Britain, but was rushing into debt itself at the rate of $350,000 a year.

In the face of this financial situation, the Confederationists of the colony found that, considered from the standpoint of economy, their scheme for union had a stronger case than ever. Under Confederation, the machinery of government would be greatly simplified by reduction in the number of officials. It was estimated that the expenses of the entire Civil List might be defrayed from a sum less than the $20,000, paid to Governor Seymour as salary, and that the local Government would require only $25,000, where it formerly had expended $100,000.

The customs dues and postal revenues would be paid to the Federal Government to form the consolidated revenue, which would be applied to the public service of Canada. In return for the surrender of these, the province would receive the fee simple title to Crown lands, mines and minerals, the assumption of its debt by the Dominion, and a fixed annual grant to support the local Government. It was estimated that the grant for British Columbia, based on that made to the provinces already in the Confederacy, would amount to about $80,000. Fines and fees of court, and trade licences would yield another $35,000, making a total of $115,000.

During 1866 the actual expenditure of the Government had been $738,275, an amount which covered little more than the actual cost of the administration and the meeting of debentures. It was recalled that, during the last year of Governor Douglas' regime, 1863-64, the colony of Vancouver Island had been governed at the expense of $110,000. At the time there was a much larger population, new roads were being built and other improvements carried out, and a strong staff of officials had to be maintained. It seemed reasonable to expect that under Confederation a similar sum would be sufficient to meet the costs of the local government.

This Week's Great Day

September 29—Birth of Robert Clive

(By CHARLES CONWAY)

Two hundred and five years ago on September 29, 1725, Robert Clive, whose military and administrative genius established British supremacy in India, was born in the English country town of Market Drayton.

After an undistinguished career at school, where he neglected his studies to indulge in perilous escapades, he was sent out to India at the age of eighteen in the service of the East India Company. He found his clerical duties most congenial, and during the two years that he was chained to the desk his only solace was a systematic course of study, which more than made up for his neglect of earlier opportunities.

At that time the French rivals of the East India Company had allied themselves with a number of native princes, and were making a determined attempt to drive the English out of India, which afforded Clive a welcome chance to discard the pen for the sword. In 1745 he secured an ensign's commission in the army of the East India Company, and he almost immediately attracted wide attention and commendation by his great courage and skill in a number of small battles.

Six years later, at the age of twenty-six, he established his reputation as one of the greatest military leaders in British history by his brilliant exploit at Arcot, when, with a force of only 500 men, he captured a fort garrisoned by 1,100 defenders, and afterwards held it for a period of fifty-five days, in spite of desperate attacks by overwhelming forces of the enemy. After two further years of strenuous active service his health became badly shattered, and he returned to England, where he was deservedly showered with honors.

GREAT ARMY ROUTED

In 1756, when he returned to India with the rank of colonel in the army of the King, he was appointed governor of Fort St. David. A fresh series of remarkable military achievements culminated in his wonderful victory at the Battle of Plassey on June 23, 1757, when he completely routed the mighty army of Nawab Suraj-ud-Dowla, which consisted of 18,000 cavalry, 50,000 infantry and thirty-five heavy guns, with a force of only 3,000 men and nine guns.

During the next three years he was mainly occupied with the work of civil administration, and he labored for the welfare of the natives who had come under British control as a result of his military genius. In 1760 he again returned to England, where his services were rewarded with an Irish peerage and he became a member of the House of Commons. During the five years, which he spent at home on this occasion, he performed some valuable work in supervising the reform of the home system of the East India Company.

TRIBUTE PAID

He went back to India for the third and last time in 1768, when he was invested with the combined powers of civil governor and military commander-in-chief, and for the next two years he was engaged in sweeping away the numerous abuses which had arisen during his absence. In creating a strong and pure administration he made numerous and powerful vicious enemies, and on his return to England in 1767 he was attacked on all sides. An attempt was made to impeach him, but the House of Commons, after a lengthy enquiry refused to criticize or censure any of his actions in India and paid a well-deserved tribute to his great and meritorious service.

His arduous labors in the tropical heat of India had undermined his constitution, and his health was completely broken by the strain of combating the attacks of his unscrupulous enemies. Finally his brain gave way, and during an attack of intense melancholia he died by his own hand on November 22, 1774, at the age of forty-nine. (Copyrighted.)

NEW ZEALAND PREMIER ARRIVES IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The word "peace" has never been mentioned in New Zealand," said Rt. Hon. G. W. Forster, Prime Minister of New Zealand, who arrived here last night to participate in the Imperial Conference.

"The bond which keeps our Empire together," said Mr. Forster, "is sentiment. That, in my opinion, is the greatest tie of all. We don't want tariff walls. We give the rest of the Empire the same preference as we give Britain so that we can encourage trade within the Empire."

CHAMBER WILL BE VENTILATED

Legislative Assembly Hall
Undergoes Modernization of Air System

HEAT CONTROL PLANNED

Much needed improvements to the ventilation system of the Legislative Assembly Chamber are being carried out now under the direction of the Department of Public Works. A system of fans, thermostats and air ducts will supply a steady stream of fresh air, at even temperatures, to all parts of the hall. In the past, members of the House in session suffered from lack of adequate ventilation.

The system being installed is the latest known to modern engineering, and similar to provision made in hospitals for insuring a supply of fresh air, automatically controlled as to temperature. Provision is being made also for later installation of air filters, if this is found necessary.

Powerful fans will draw off the cold and vitiated air from the floor and from the public galleries. Other fans will deliver a supply of 8,400 cubic feet per minute of fresh air, which will first pass over heating coils, to bring the temperature up to about seventy degrees. Exhaust and intake fans are to be connected to a series of air ducts in grills passing around the four walls, and which will be treated to fit in with the general decorative scheme.

Obituary

MEYER—There passed away on Friday evening at her home, 1184 Esquimalt Road, Miss Louisa W. Meyer, at the age of seventy-five years. She was born in Ontario, and has resided in Victoria for the past thirty years. Miss Meyer leaves to mourn her loss two sisters, Mrs. W. Pearce and Mrs. H. G. DRURY LANE THEATRE MAY CLOSE ITS DOORS

Sir Alfred Butt Considers Dropping
His Contract With Famous
London House

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Sir Alfred Butt, one of the most noted London theatrical entrepreneurs, told the stockholders of the Drury Lane Theatre yesterday that proposals are afoot which may prevent him from renewing his contract with the famous playhouse.

The Drury Lane, like many other amusement centres, has had its share of hard times recently, despite efficient management.

The theatre had its inception in the granting of a royal charter by that merry and amusement-loving monarch Charles the Second. For fifty years, culminating in the Great War, it attracted world-wide attention by its elaborate presentation of Christmas pantomimes and dramas. These involved sensational effects, such as train smashes, shipwrecks, mighty explosions and inundations—in fact, almost every kind of upheaval which could be "perpetrated" with perfect safety to both actors and beholders.

But when the stockholders yesterday suggested that these gaudy spectacles could be revived, Sir Alfred turned the idea down emphatically, and it is a pungent commentary on the changing times that he said the cinema had forced a transfer of melodrama from the stage to the screen, which possessed more facilities for exploitation.

Sir Alfred Butt said he had read hundreds of plays in an effort to discover a "go," but none, he found, would justify the enormous cost involved in a Drury Lane production.

SEYMOUR NARROWS BRIDGE
Sir,—I was very pleased to see that the Seymour Narrows bridge project is not being lost sight of by some of our readers. I propose the suggestion that at least some of the money being allotted to road work on our Island here should be spent in the vicinity of our Seymour Narrows bridge site.

I certainly believe that we should have constructed, at the earliest possible moment, a spur road running from Bayward Road at the north end of Menzies Bay to the site of the Vancouver Island approach. It will give us a start toward this most worthy project for the advancement of our Island and will give many people the opportunity to view the site and so stimulate a vast number of persons to the fulfillment of this most important enterprise for our future prosperity.

UNEMPLOYED MEETING

Sir,—I would like to extend the thanks of the Vancouver Island Unemployed Association to the Very Rev. Dean Quainton for his kindness in permitting the use of the old schoolroom, near Christ Church Cathedral, for a meeting of the unemployed on Wednesday evening next. I am sure the unemployed will fully appreciate his action.

and all Radiola Models

On August 26, 1930, Westinghouse established the world's record for perfect reproduction. Tens of thousands of listeners to this historic broadcast were unable to determine whether they were listening to music and song reproduced through the Super-Heterodyne, or to the orchestra and artists direct.

WHY are the eyes and ears of the Radio world turned towards Super-Heterodyne Radio?...For the same reasons that the Super-Heterodyne is used by the naval defense forces of the world—Because it offers a degree of sensitivity and selectivity far above ordinary circuits—Because it supplies the foundation for perfect tone quality which means real radio enjoyment

● Westinghouse manufacturing facilities have removed Super-Heterodyne Radio from the luxury class and made it available to all at prices as low as $225 ● In addition to the Super-Heterodyne circuit, Westinghouse offers the advantages of such outstanding engineering developments as Tone Color Control—which enables you to select the exact tone timbre you prefer; Automatic Volume Control—practically overcomes "fading"—and many other features that add immeasurably to quiet, enjoyable performance at all times ● If you are not familiar with the Westinghouse Super-Heterodyne, you cannot fully appreciate the amazing achievements of today's standard of radio perfection. See your nearest Westinghouse dealer and satisfy yourself of the truth of these statements.

Written by a newspaper woman who has had a great deal of experience in criminology it rings true to the traditions of police reporting. The first installment will run in The Colonist on Tuesday.

Barbers Ask New By-Law—The barbers of Victoria are petitioning the City Council for a new by-law, and the repeal of all other by-laws affecting the occupation. The measure, if approved, will call for the closing of all shops at 6 o'clock on week days, 1 o'clock on Wednesday and 8 o'clock Saturday nights, or on nights preceding public holidays. It is understood that the new move on the part of the barbers is partly because of the impression that existing laws are legally doubtful.

REV. T. A. JANSEN IS APPOINTED DELEGATE

Will Represent British Columbia at Milwaukee Convention of United Lutheran Church

Rev. Theodore A. Jansen, minister of Grace Lutheran Church of this city, has been appointed sole clerical delegate for British Columbia to the Pacific Synod of the United Lutheran Church of America, which will hold its seventh biennial convention at Milwaukee from October 7 to 16. Holding the synodical office of statistical secretary, Mr. Jansen will take part while in Milwaukee in a conference of the statistical secretaries of the denomination. He will leave on Tuesday and expects to be absent about three weeks. The lay delegate is W. H. Hooper of Vancouver.

The United Lutheran Church of America, while not largely represented in British Columbia, numbers nearly 4,000 churches and this continent with a baptized membership of 1,400,000 and is the largest general body of Lutherans in America. Special interest attaches to the Milwaukee convention as being held in the 400th anniversary year of the Augsburg confession, the creedal standard for Lutherans the world over, and which is being celebrated in America.

Additional interest arises from the approaching federation of all Lutheran bodies throughout the world, embracing a total constituency of over 80,000,000.

about the city, expressing keen appreciation of its floral beauty.

Returning to the boat shortly before the time of sailing, the Earl said he regretted not having had more time at his disposal, as he would have liked to have enjoyed more of the scenic charms of Vancouver Island.

Speaking of the Scottish Union Jubilee, which was celebrated recently at New York, Hartford, Montreal and Toronto, Mr. Nicoll told The Colonist of the satisfactory growth of the company's business on this continent.

BRIGHT FUTURE ASSURED

Canada, he said, had nothing to fear from the future. Everywhere about the country were evidences of virile growth and the inherent strength of its development. If a prediction could safely be made, he would say that the future of Canada would be brighter than heretofore of any portion of the Empire. If not of the world, the tour through Canada, he concluded, had been an inspiration and would not be forgotten.

From Seattle, where its members will reassemble today, the party will go south to Los Angeles, and thence east through Texas and the Southern States to New York, where they are due to leave for the United Kingdom on October 17.

STEINWAY

"Instrument of the Immortals"

Wherever there are children there should be a piano

THE LEADERS of tomorrow are the piano students of today . . . and that is why it is difficult to find a family of importance anywhere that will deliberately overlook this cultural influence in the lives of their children.

But the first step to be taken is a parent's responsibility . . . a piano of traditional quality is essential. A piano, such as the Steinway, is treasured in homes where children are reared in the cultured tradition. It brings a sure inspiration to the children's instruction, leaving their talents unhandicapped from the beginning by the distortive influences of less perfect instruments.

Although the Steinway ranks so high in the world of excellent things, yet it may be acquired by anyone on terms that will not burden the most moderate income. It can be purchased for as little as 10% down, and the balance over a period of three years.

Varied Activities of Women

COMING OF AGE CELEBRATED BY WOMEN'S CLUB

Nearly Five Hundred Attend
Successful Event at Empress Hotel

PREMIER AND MAYOR CONVEY GREETINGS

Charming in all its appointments and eminently congratulatory in character, the twenty-first birthday anniversary tea of the Women's Canadian Club, held Friday afternoon at the Empress Hotel, contained all the elements associated with a happily-celebrated coming-of-age party.

Nearly five hundred guests attended the function, occupying small circular tables set in the main ballroom and adjacent lounge. Candles and flowers, used profusely in the decoration, added brilliancy to the animated scene. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Miss Mackenzie (accompanied by Captain Cromack) and their guest, the Lady Northcott, were received on arrival by the club president, Mrs. P. B. Scurrah, and other members of the executive. They and other guests of honor were piped in by Lillian Grant, winner of several recent piping contests, and took their seats after the singing of the National Anthem and "O Canada."

AT HEAD TABLE

Seated at the head table, which like the smaller guest tables surrounding it was decorated with Michaelmas daisies, ranunculus, peonies, cosmos, and other autumn flowers, and lighted by several gold, mauve, and white tapers, were Mrs. P. B. Scurrah, the Lieutenant-Governor and Miss Mackenzie, Premier and Mrs. Toimie, Mayor Herbert Anson, Mr. P. B. Fowler (president of the Men's Canadian Club), Mrs. James Dunsmuir (first president of the Women's Canadian Club), Mrs. Martindale (president of the Nanaimo club) and Mrs. Primrose, (president of the Seattle club).

Each of the other guest tables had a hostess, a member of the present executive, and about these tables were distributed the other guests of honor: past presidents of the club, Mrs. J. C. F. Hyndman, Mrs. H. P. Hodges, Miss Kathleen Agnew, Mrs. Peter MacNaughton, Mrs. C. Spofford; the Hon. Mr. Justice McPhillips (who took a leading part at the inaugural meeting), and those of the members of the first executive and charter members who were able to be present. Among the past presidents who were unable to attend were Mrs. G. H. Barnard, Mrs. F. B. Pemberton, Mrs. H. Hannington, and Mrs. F. A. McDiarmid.

RECITES HISTORY

Among the members of the first executive named by Mrs. Spofford in her recital of the club history, and several of whom were present, were Mrs. Dunsmuir, Mrs. G. B. Barnard, Mrs. Pemberton, Mrs. H. Croft, Mrs. Charles E. Wilson, first secretary; Miss Leeming, assistant secretary; Mrs. A. Robertson, treasurer; Mrs. C. Fitzgibbon, literary correspondent; Lady McBride, Mrs. Lewis Hall, Miss F. T. Clarke, Miss E. Lawrence, Miss F. Fitzgibbon, Mrs. J. S. Ballantyne, Miss Rickaby, Mrs. E. B. C. Hannington, Mrs. Gordon Grant, Miss E. Lawrence, Miss F. Fitzgibbon, Mrs. J. E. Wilson, Miss B. Harrison, Miss Tuck, Miss Workman, Mrs. D. R. Ker, Mrs. G. H. Gray, Miss L. Clarke, Mrs. Beaumont Boggs, Mrs. A. M. Christie, Mrs. Suttie, Mrs. Stuart Robertson, Miss Emma Sehl, Mrs. Love and Mrs. Pierce. Invitations were also sent to Mrs. R. P. Butchart, Mrs. R. W. Perry and Mrs. Dennis Harris.

Among those who acted as hostesses were: Mrs. Scurrah, Mrs. H. F. Crowe, Mrs. W. G. Wilson, Mrs. R. K. Taylor, Mrs. Alfred Gar-michael, Mrs. E. S. Parr, Mrs. H. J. Pendray, Mrs. W. Ellis, Mrs. P. E. Corby, Mrs. D. B. McConnan and Mrs. S. J. Willis.

BRING GREETINGS

After Mrs. Scurrah had extended greetings to the special guests of the afternoon, she called on Mrs. Dunsmuir, as first president of the club, to cut the birthday cake, a handsome five-tier collection lighted with twenty-one tiny candles which occupied a table by itself in the middle of the room. Walters distributed the cake among the guests.

Greetings of special character were brought by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Justice McPhillips, Miss Ross, president of the Vancouver ladies' club, Mrs. Martindale of the Nanaimo club, Mrs. Primrose of the Seattle club, Premier Toimie, Mayor Anson and Mr. P. B. Fowler, president of the Men's Canadian Club.

REPRESENTING CROWN

"I am delighted to be here as the representative of the Crown, to bring felicitations to the Women's Canadian Club upon achieving this great milestone in your life's history," said His Honor. "It should be a source of pride to the club to have increased the membership twenty times in twenty-one years, bringing the present total to 1,300 members."

He praised the ladies for their war work, their continual interest in educational matters and home economics, and other laudable activities. The changed status of women in the past twenty-one years had been startling, this change being symbolized by the feast of such women as Miss Amy Johnson and Miss Foster.

SUCCESS PHENOMENAL

Mr. Justice McPhillips expressed his gratification in being present to hear about the great success which the club had experienced in its twenty-one years. In his tribute, this speaker particularly touched on the educational and patriotic work. Mrs. Martindale, Miss Ross, and Mrs. Primrose brought greetings from their respective organizations; and Mr. P. Fowler from the Men's Canadian Club. "I am old-fashioned enough to believe that the future of a nation lies with the women of the country," Mr. Fowler declared.

Premier Toimie brought greetings from the Province, and like Mrs. Scurrah, particularly referred to the late Mrs. Margaret Jenkins, for many years president of the club, and ever active in the welfare of the community. Through the Women's Canadian Club, he congratulated the whole Canadian club movement for what it was doing in affording opportunities to hear such speakers as Mr. E. W. Beatty, K. C.

Mayor Herbert Anson spoke with an inner knowledge of the needs of such institutions as the hospitals, the Y.W.C.A., and other places of the kind in complimenting the club on its generous activities in assisting such.

PROGRAMME

The pleasure of the occasion was enhanced by the delightful singing of Mrs. Charles Wilson, accompanied at the piano by her small daughter, Miss Gloria Wilson. Her numbers, both very artistically interpreted, were "Garo mio ben" and "Sylvia."

During the afternoon Mrs. Scurrah, on behalf of the club, presented Miss Mackenzie with a lovely bouquet of American Beauty roses, and His Honor presented to Mrs. Scurrah a great armful of flowers picked in the gardens at Government House, "the symbol of the numerous figurative bouquets he would like to proffer to a club which had such a fine record." Mrs. Spofford read the minutes of the first meeting recalling something of the ideal which had inspired the women to organize. Among the messages of congratulation received during the afternoon were: Mrs. G. B. Barnard, Mrs. S. J. Willis, secretary of the Federated Canadian Clubs.

Bacon Adds Delicious Flavor to Dishes

By EDITH M. BARBER

In any household where bacon is cooked often there will be much fat. This is a real asset in cooking for delicious hash-browned potatoes, good gingerbread and muffins and omelets. It is also especially good with fried chicken. Macaroni with bacon—1 pound round steak, 6 oz. macaroni, 1-2 pound mushrooms, 3 tablespoons butter, bacon, 1 can tomato soup, salt and pepper, 1 teaspoon onion juice, grated cheese, 1 tomato cut in eighth. Broil, put through a grinder and season with steak. Cook macaroni. Sauté the mushrooms in butter seven minutes and add macaroni. Make a sauce with tomato soup, salt, pepper and onion juice. Add steak mushrooms and macaroni and pour into a baking dish, grate cheese over the top, decorate with tomato eighth, cover with strips of bacon and brown in a hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit).

Stuffed bacon—12 slices bacon, 1 teaspoon melted jelly, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1-3 cup milk or stock, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, paprika. Combine the bread crumbs, liquid and seasonings to form a paste. Spread a thin layer over each slice of bacon, roll and fasten with toothpicks. Lay rolls in a shallow baking dish and bake for twenty minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit). Turn or bake two or three times during the cooking. Remove toothpicks and serve with spiced fruit pickle.

Bacon muffins—2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons bacon fat, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, well beaten, 1-2 cup finely chopped bacon. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, work in melted bacon fat, add milk, mixing quickly, and add egg and bacon. Bake in greased muffin pans twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Devotees of All Religions Unite To Foster Peace

Universal Brotherhood Is Objective of World Conference for International Peace Through Religion, Which Held Executive Session at Berne, Switzerland, Last Month

Will Meet at Washington, D.C., in 1932

DEVOTEES of a dozen faiths bowing in corporate worship, Buddhists alongside Christians and both with Hindus and Bahais, Parsis quoting the Gospel of St. John and Shintoists making affirmations from the Analects of Confucius, followers of Moses and Mahomet expressing their faith in the language of Lao-tze, worshippers of Christ and worshippers of Krishna uniting in declarations of human brotherhood, and all making obeisance to their common God in the matchless music of the Lord's Prayer—something like this will characterize the unique service that will be held at the coming meeting in November, 1932, at Washington, D.C., of the World Conference for International Peace through Religion.

It is now six years ago since the religious aspirations and attitudes to dream of pooling the universal re-

Peace Through Religion

RABBI STEPHEN WISE

RABBI Stephen Wise, of New York, is a member of the Executive of the World Conference for International Peace Through Religion, which will meet at Washington, D.C., in November, 1932. The late Dr. Fridtjof Nansen was an enthusiastic supporter of the movement.

LATE DR. F. NANSEN

of the heart of Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, of New York. Broached by him to a small group at the Stockholm Conference on Life and Work in 1925, the dream took shape at Geneva three years later—thanks to the financial aid of the late Andrew Carnegie through the Church Peace Union—when one hundred delegates from the ends of the earth and representing most of the world's living religions, held a preliminary conference. They found common ground in aims and in worship, uniting in a remarkable service the liturgy, which was drawn from the sacred books of their respective faiths. Executive meetings at Frankfurt and Paris last year, and in August last at Berne, completed the plans for the full conference two years hence.

PEACE PILGRIMAGE

A city in Asia, as the continent which has given birth to all the world religions, was first projected. Calcutta, Colombo and Jerusalem were mentioned. For various reasons the Eastern venue was deemed impracticable. Fortunately there came to the recent executive session at Berne an invitation from the American Congressional Commission which has in hand the bicentenary of Washington's birthday to hold the conference in the United States capital at that time. Hither, then, the adherents of a dozen faiths will make their peace pilgrimage.

That only one-half of one per cent of the world population—five out of every thousand—do not profess religion of some sort or another seems to the promoters of this movement a great potential fact. They find, too, that every religion teaches peace. "Blessed are the peacemakers," says Christianity. Judaism promises the conversion of swords into ploughshares. "There is nothing nobler than humanity," says Hinduism, and Buddhism urges that "all cultivate goodwill towards all the world." Islam, deemed by the West as a faith of fire and sword, is a religion of peace. "The very word Islam means peace," declared a Muslim at Geneva. A Chinese delegate quoted Confucius that "within the four seas all are brothers," and informed the conference that China had an international disarmament conference in the sixth century before Christ. To translate precept into practice is the objective of the movement.

DISTINGUISHED LEADERS

Names distinguished for the forward look and world peace are behind the enterprise. The late Dr. Nansen was an ardent supporter. Dr. Hailek Matthew, of Chicago, trustee of the Church Peace Union, is president. Among those serving on the four preparatory commissions are Rabbi Stephen Wise, Dr. Rufus Jones, Dr. K. T. Paul, Dr. Rabindranath Tagore, Dr. Cyril Norwood, Sir J. Arthur Thomson, Sir Arthur Salter, Sir J. C. Bose and Dr. Cadman.

Chicago had a parliament of Religions in 1893, but the Washington gathering will be different. That was for discussion, this for action. These each championed his own creed, but in this movement all seek a common ground on which to serve the world. This group is the supremacy of the spiritual. "Every major problem," said Dr. Atkinson at the Berne meeting, "that faces humanity today has in its elements that defy any solution other than that based on a recognition of spiritual values." The dream is of a League of Religions to promote peace.

SCIENTIST AT GRIPS WITH BROOKLYN RABBI

In the opinion of Dr. Albert Einstein, German physicist, the theory of relativity is entirely distinct from the philosophical aspect unless the philosophical theory that is applied be a pure and abstract theory a priori. It was learned recently from a letter written by Dr. Einstein to Dr. Abraham Geller, a retired rabbi and student of philosophy, of 32 Hoff Street, Brooklyn.

Dr. Einstein's letter, in part, reads as follows:

"I can say to you with certainty that the theory of relativity has nothing to do with the philosophical theory thereof. Each purely natural-scientific theory, as well as the theory of relativity, is in agreement with every system of philosophy that is not objectionable.

"The expression 'relative' as applied to space and time is so multigamous that nothing can be said thereof without an exact determination and application.

"The answers to your questions would fill volumes, so I cannot possibly enter into any detailed explanation of them. I can say briefly that I am almost exactly of the opinion of Spinoza and consider myself to be unable to agree with the monothetic conception as a convinced determinist."

Dr. Geller, who has been corresponding with Dr. Einstein, said he would question the scientist further upon his theories of the relativity of motion and the immortality of the soul.

ABBAY FUNERAL FOR PEER

Officials of Westminster Abbey are endeavoring to learn how the right to be buried in the Abbey fell to the Duke of Northumberland's family. The funeral of the Duke was recently held there, when it was disclosed that his was the only family remaining with the right of burial within the Abbey, and they share with royalty the privilege of entering by the west door. As far as can be ascertained, the rights were granted by Charles II.

Federal and Provincial Governments Co-operate on Big Bend Work

UNDERTAKING TO BE COMPLETED IN 1932

Destined to be part of a transcontinental highway system which will link British Columbia and Eastern Canada, via Calgary, steady progress is being made on the Big Bend highway, where grading is proceeding under the Dominion Public Works Department. It was learned here yesterday.

By arrangement between the Federal and Provincial Governments, the Dominion has undertaken the completion within three years of that section of the highway between Donald and Big Bend on the Columbia River, entailing a bridge across the river. The Provincial Government will complete the link between Big Bend and Revelstoke.

About twenty-eight miles of the road will be completed shortly by the Federal department up to Bush River, with a further fifty-three miles to be built. The Provincial section will be completed to Downie Creek, where a bridge will be laid across that waterway this fall. The whole project will be finished by 1932, it is expected.

HOW CAME WE BY "KING?"

"Language," says Trench, "is the amber in which a thousand precious thoughts have been safely embedded and preserved."

Most words have a "fossil history" radiating a sense and surrounded through time with an aura that fades back through the line of their pedigree to the world in its youth.

Consider, for example, the word "king." "King" is probably the oldest word in existence.

You are astounded. How can that be, you ask. The institution of kings has not been with us so very long, as time is measured.

Nevertheless, the word "king," as you shall see, is the oldest word in the world—just about.

For we have it directly from the Saxon "Cyng," among these primitive tribes it indicating the chief. Originally, however, it is rooted in the Sanskrit "Ganaka," meaning "father."

So, through a process of evolution as slow, as sure, and as irresistible as the passage of the centuries, the term "king" by graduation, and bearing within it, evidence of its own dim beginnings, passed from its significance as head of a family to that of tribe and thence to nation.

Mrs. Caroline B. King told an interesting story to young literary aspirants at Temple University. Mrs. King spoke of the prevalent idea that the offerings of unknown writers are not read by editors who receive them. She said that when she first entered the magazine field a fledgling author burst in on her editor one day and violently exclaimed: "I know you have not read my article; I put a strand of hair between the fourteenth and fifteenth pages and it's still there untouched!"

"My dear man," the weary editor calmly replied, "if you break an egg for breakfast, do you have to eat the whole thing before you know it's rotten?"

And the editor received no answer.—Philadelphia Record.

BUSY executives, appreciating the need for alert, clear thinking, recognize the tremendous importance of these two factors—health and comfort—and know that health follows comfort.

Further, they recognize the mental comfort of being well-dressed—which starts from the skin out. No man can feel well-dressed if he has a few yards of stretched out fabric rolled around his legs, or flapping from out his sleeves.

Stanfield's comfort gets its start through proper design—then carries on through exclusive processes and careful tailoring to its final inspection, where it is checked for absolute perfection. Not one Stanfield's garment, no matter how low its price, ever leaves the plant without being individually examined. Yet, despite its obvious better quality, Stanfield's costs you little or no more than ordinary underwear.

Go to your favourite store today. Feel the warmth-without-weight in the fabrics knit for men who spend most of their time in their offices. Ask the clerk to show you why Stanfield's is better. Then buy it. A style and weight to meet every need, a price to suit every purse.

ISLAND COAL IS GOOD COAL

YOUR TON OF ISLAND COAL IS THE MINER'S BREAD & CHEESE

EVERY ton of Island Coal taken from the earth insures one day's maintenance for a miner and his family. To you it's probably just "coal" . . . an "unavoidable expense". What does it matter where it comes from, so long as it warms the house?

But wait a minute! There's more in this than meets the eye.

Don't let's forget that on Vancouver Island is one of British Columbia's major industries . . . coal mining. Every dollar we send out of the community for non-Island coals . . . or for fuels other than coal . . . is a dollar less in the pockets of our own people.

You can do your bit toward the relief of unemployment by buying Island Coal. Thus you will be making not only a practical investment in Home Industry, but you will be making a definite improvement in the economical operation of your own household.

Nanaimo-Wellington and Comox Coals show a better average of B.T.U.'s (heat units) than other coals sold locally. Island Coals are uniformly good coals. They burn freely, easily, have an exceptionally low moisture content and if governed by automatic control, yield more heat for every purpose.

Choose a reliable dealer from this list. He can show you how it is to your advantage to buy Island Coal. And remember, with your order on file, he is saving your money and making it possible for at least one miner's family to forget for a day the menace of unemployment.

These are common sense facts . . . of vital importance to all who live on Vancouver Island or in Greater Vancouver.

TRANS-ISLAND FEDERAL PARK IS ADVOCATED

Long Beach, Strathcona
Park and Forbidden Plateau to Be Included

PLAN OUTLINED TO CUMBERLAND BOARD

CUMBERLAND, Sept. 27.—Construction of a road from Cumberland to Long Beach, and inclusion of Long Beach, Strathcona Park and the Forbidden Plateau in one continuous Federal National Park were advocated and received enthusiastic support at a meeting of the Cumberland Board of Trade on Wednesday night. T. H. Mumford, president of the local board, was the chair and visitors included: Messrs. McPhee, Ball, Simms and Douglas, of the Courtenay-Cornwall board; Dr. G. K. MacNaughton, M.P.P., and P. Leo Anderson, president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Mumford said that the meeting had two or three things of vital interest to discuss. In view of the fact that the Federal Government had voted the sum of twenty million dollars for the undertaking of necessary public works, he thought this an opportune time to further advance claims for the completion of the Cumberland Lake-Alberni road. In this he was supported by Mr. Simms, who said he was entirely in accord with the suggestion of the Cumberland president. He thought he was safe in saying that the whole of the Courtenay district would back up the claims of the board, more especially when it was shown that with the starting of this road the unemployed question in the district would be solved. He moved that a resolution be drawn up and presented to the necessary authorities, and also urged the enlisting of the services of Dr. MacNaughton.

HISTORY OF PROJECT

Dr. MacNaughton, member for this district in the Provincial House, said that any scheme which would benefit this district and relieve unemployment would have his heartiest support. He reminded the audience, however, that the Government were not committed to a policy of building the Cumberland Lake-Alberni road. Surveys had been made many years ago, he was led to believe, and the cost as submitted then for the construction of the road was considered by the Government of the day as quite large. He admitted it would not be as easy to get the Government to see the necessity of building this road as was generally thought. However, he would do all in his power to assist the Board of Trade in their efforts to get the road started, which would undoubtedly solve for a long time the unemployment in this town alone. The number of unemployed, stated the doctor, was turned into the Government some time ago and possibly since then the situation has been aggravated. A few men would no doubt be employed on the Menzies Bay Road, also on the road to Oyster and Campbell River.

NATIONAL PARK SITE

P. Leo Anderson, the president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, addressed the meeting. With the powers that be looking with favor on a national park site on the west coast of the island, he thought the present time an opportune one to bring forth their views in regard to this matter. He suggested that the Boards of Trade at the north end of the island get busy immediately and urge that a piece of land stretching from Long Beach on the west coast to Lake Cumberland on the east coast be set aside as a national park area. The proposed territory would take in Strathcona Park, the Forbidden Plateau, down to Lake Cumberland. The area had all that the Parks Board wanted, a sea frontage and elevation. There was very little of the land held privately, and if the Dominion Parks Board could be handed the area without any strings whatever, it would not be long before this area would be solving for all time the unemployed question on Vancouver Island.

Another point which Mr. Anderson brought out was that this park would make a good argument for the construction of the road from Cumberland Lake to Alberni. In the general discussion which followed, Dr. MacNaughton said that after listening to Mr. Anderson he was more than ever convinced that the Cumberland Lake-Alberni Road was a necessity. He felt as Mr. Anderson did that such a scheme would solve all our unemployment troubles. He would certainly support the idea advanced by the president of the Associated Boards and would do all in his power to bring to the attention of the authorities the necessity for immediate action.

COMMITTEE NAMED

A parks committee from the Cumberland Board was named by the president to work in conjunction with the Courtenay Parks Board in furthering the project. The committee named consists of Messrs. Radie, Symons and Carey. The matter of obtaining the number of unemployed throughout the district was also discussed, which was thought by the members present to be an arduous undertaking. It was left to a special committee to find some means of obtaining the information. A vote of thanks was tendered to Dr. MacNaughton and to Mr. P. Leo Anderson for their help and attendance.

LOCAL LONGSHOREMEN

In the course of President Mumford's opening remarks he said that one of the problems which should be faced was the securing of the necessary help to load the next Japanese boat which would be coming very shortly to load lumber at mills in this district. One of the chief difficulties the operators of the last boat coming in had to contend with was in the securing of help. They had been forced to bring longshoremen from Vancouver at an enormous expense, and the suggestion was advanced that enough local men could be secured to do this work. A committee composed of Messrs. Ball, McPhee, Douglas, Symons and T. H. Carey was appointed to look into the matter of securing the help needed.

A passing car conveyed the shaken travelers to hospital where, after treatment, all were able to be conveyed to their home, with the exception of Mrs. Stone, who is now progressing satisfactorily.

McINTYRE MILL TO BE READY BY NEXT MONTH

(McIntyre, Roe & Co., Ltd.)
The new McIntyre mill, for which foundations are being poured, is scheduled to be ready by next March and in full operation (2,000 tons daily) by May next. The mill building will be less than half the size of the present 1,500 ton structure. It is noteworthy that there will be no interruption in production involved in the change from the old mill to the new. Units in the new mill will start production and by degrees part of the equipment of the present mill will be transferred. McIntyre is adding to ore reserves this year on such a scale as, apparently, to assure an increase comparable with that of last year.

The flotation section of the new mill will have ninety-six Fairbank-Wald flotation cells. Five tube mills will be used on original crushing and two will treat flotation concentrates for cyanidation. The new process involves not only a great saving in mill construction expenditure, but will recover a greater percentage of gold in the ore and reduce milling costs by some sixty cents per ton.

Last year McIntyre earned $2.50 per share, before depreciation, and on the increase of 33 per cent in tonnage to be handled slowly would earn $3.50 next year. Add to this the larger recovery and the 60 cents per ton drop in costs and earnings something better than $4.00 per

A Turn of Fortune's Wheel

By EDGAR PICKERING

CHAPTER XXVI

The floods were out and Down-ton, a sleepy little town, watched the rising water which from time immemorial had invaded the houses on the river bank at certain seasons, thereby providing a change in the dull monotony of the on-lookers' daily existence. Those who had nothing to do, which was the permanent case with most of them, found occupation in intercepting the trees and pieces of timber that were being carried seaward on the swirling current, and bringing it ashore for firewood, drowned cattle floated by disregarded, the swing bridge opened from time to time to allow long successions of laden boats towed by panting tugs to go through, and people whose dwellings were not being inundated found amusement in all this as their forefathers had done.

Down-ton lay midway between London and the coast, and concern-ed itself with neither, its inhabi-tants leading their bovine lives quite indifferent to the outer world and its various interests. Old Enoch Brick could have told the gene-salogy of every one of them, and a natural tactfulness had not pre-vented him from speaking an un-necessary word, whose duty was to work the machinery opening the bridge, and that done he was ac-customed to retire to a hut at the end of it, out of the weather as the humid atmosphere was called in the vernacular. A short roadway led upward from his refuge to the main street and beyond it into bare coun-try, out of which heavy lorries lumbered and motorcars hurried past Enoch's hut and disappeared on the further side of the bridge, unless warned by a faded piece of red flag that it was open, and on race days at some neighboring town quite a number of vehicles would be delayed in their career, when the river was unusually high, which was the case that lowering evening of James Redford's last day in England.

He had passed the previous night at a coffee house after leaving Buller's Court and early next morning paid a visit to a garage where he remembered seeing a shabby ill-used car for sale very cheaply. Thirty pounds would buy the old-fashioned machine and it would serve his purpose by taking him to Southampton. He would get some other clothes on his way there—a seaman's rig-out, perhaps, and a new hope sprang up—he had been in a tight corner before this, and once he got away he would be safe. There was the chance of an in-quisitive policeman demanding to see his licence, but that was not very probable and easily got over by giving a false name and address. He was not a very presentable figure when he went to the garage, but on producing the thirty pounds, the suspicions the proprietor had first entertained of him immedi-ately vanished, for there is a won-derful appeal in ready money, and although he professed the car was being given away, it was worth double in fact, and only needed a touch of paint to be equal to a Rolls Royce, he let it go, and Redford got to the seat with a promise from the proprietor of taking the car back and returning the money, if it did not prove a first-class bargain.

An hour later and Redford was a long way from London, speeding towards the coast.

He had decided on his plans and even the memory of his life in Lon-don and the wealth he had squan-dered were becoming dim in this new venture of his. As to his wife and Mrs. Beresford he could only laugh at the thought of them, but he would like to have his revenge on Montford who had denounced and ruined him. That was all in the past now and once in the States a new career would be open to him. He was occupied in thinking of it as he drove along the highroad, every mile of which separated him further and further from danger, and at midday he stopped to make an excellent meal at a hotel.

The car was behaving a great deal better than he had expected. It was capable of doing forty miles an hour certainly, but he was not in a hurry, and being skilled in the management of a motor, he nursed the engine, examining it occasion-ally, tightening a bolt here and ad-justing a part there. The garage-keeper had not deceived him, and if no earthly paint could have trans-formed the crazy thing into a high-class car, it was performing its duty admirably.

The quietude around and the freshness of the air, the absence of anything calculated to arouse his fears of being followed, gave him renewed confidence and aided to obscure the recollections of the luxurious life he had enjoyed and lost. He was a gambler in more senses than one, a man who dared and won when other men would have hesitated to take the risk; perfectly regardless of others, cle-ver beyond the ordinary, specious and plausible, yet liable to those sudden weakening fears, such as had driven him from his hiding-place in Buller's Court, but he ex-perienced none of them as in the coming night gloom he continued on his way to Down-ton, which the map he had bought showed him was some miles beyond the town where he had dined.

That was a quarter of an hour since, and two hard-featured men had called at the hotel, who were speaking in undertones to the land-lord. Then they had driven off hastily upon the road on which Redford was pursuing his way in the direction of Down-ton, casting a glance behind him now and again, seeing a loaded wagon creeping along the white road—seeing no-thing else because the wagon inter-cepted his view, and he got down to light the lamps. He would have been wiser in going on, for Fate was at his heels in the shape of police officers, who were eagerly looking out for an old-fashioned motorcar—they had mounted the brow of the gentle rise—were pas-sing the wagon swiftly, and Redford sprang to his driving seat, thrusting down the accelerator and was dashing down the hill at full speed. No second look was needed to assure him that he was being pursued, and an intuition possessed him that the men were detectives, as, heedless of a breakdown, he drove madly on. If he could reach the bridge, there would be a chance of escape—he would leave the car after that—some turn in the road beyond the bridge he had noted on the map, would give him a favorable opportunity, and, bend-ing low over the driving wheel, he kept on his desperate way.

The dusk was deepening into night, and Enoch Brick had lighted a lantern that hung in his hut, for some boats would be coming down presently, and he went out on to the bridge, peering into the misty distance up river, the roar of water through the arches alone distur-bing the silence. The deserted road he went back into his hut to re-plenish the little brazier, warming his gnarled hands at it, whilst nearer and nearer a car at head-long speed was approaching the town, followed by another, the distance between them lessening rapidly. Unless that turn, marked on his map, were gained to hide for a few minutes, Redford knew that his capture was certain, but it was his only chance to escape, and although an obstacle might be encountered or a breakdown happen at any moment, he gave no thought to them as he gripped the wheel, his gaze fixed on a group of cottages, stand-ing like an ugly black blot on the side. They had been left behind, and he could see lights here and there in the distance that were gained through a street of small shops, all blurred to his frantic eyes into a confused stream of light and darkness mingled. And closer still came his pursuers, so near, indeed, that as Redford looked backward for an instant, the glaring lights of their car dazzled him.

Enoch Brick, warned by a siren of a tug, coughing its way down stream with a string of boats, had opened the bridge, leaving a wide space of black water, through which the boats would churn their pas-sage in a few minutes, and he turned, giving a look up the road-way. It was an unusual thing for him to do, for no one except him-self was about, and a cold drizzling rain had begun to fall, his ordi-nary act being to wait for the tug's passing to give a friendly greet-ing to the captain. That night, how-ever, he was walking back to the warmth of his hut when an alarm-er's shout broke from his heavy throat, for not a hundred yards away a car driven at a furious speed was heading straight for the yawning gap in the bridge, and his waving lantern and warning shrieking voice were unheeded.

What happened the next minute Enoch Brick could never say with exactness. All he recollected was jumping out of the way of the car and seeing it disappear into the river. There had been no cry for help after the lights vanished, no vestige of the car seen in the inky water, and he had suddenly found himself confronted by and talking in an incoherent fashion to a couple of men, whose car had stop-ped slowly twenty feet from the bridge end. He could give them no information and all he could say was that somebody had gone straight into the river and had been drowned—and all, he added.

CHAPTER XXVII
Blackstone Abbey had regained its charm. Youth and love were wonderful and beneficent magi-cians, and the old house was gay with a happiness it had never known before. For Joyce reigned in it, and Dick, a little gruffer and more serious than formerly, had great responsibilities to occupy him.

Mrs. Beresford after a short so-journ at Brighton, had returned to Paradise Villa with Beatrice, who had the best of reasons for her dis-like and refusal to wear black. Sev-eral ladies in Blackstevens had ex-pressed their surprise at this, say-ing, as Mrs. Tongue did, that really one would have expected Beatrice to have gone into mourning if it had only been for the look of the thing.

"We have agreed never in any way to refer to the past," Mrs. Beresford had replied, and Mrs. Tongue quite unabashed felt dis-appointed. She had hoped to hear a great deal about the past, and con-sidered Mrs. Beresford blame-able for her reticence.

Mrs. Tongue and other inquisi-tive ladies were so unimportant that nothing more is required to say about them, but there were those who had played a better part in Joyce's life. Mrs. Trudge was often a visitor at Blackstone Abbey, and as not a mother herself she was quite competent to give moth-erly aid and advice. It was she who held Dick's little son at his christening and soothed his cries, she who obeyed his commands, for he was a lusty little tyrant, and never had a woman a more con-genial duty.

Mrs. Gervaise had secretly de-cided on leaving her godson a lot of money. Now that he will ever feel the need of it, and there might be brothers and sisters, but he was with the rest of the family. He no longer felt bold and brave. He felt just the reverse. That was it—scared. He felt almost too scared to breathe. He just sat there—a little black, frightened chipmunk, filled with an unnamed fear.

It seemed to Impy that he sat there ever and ever so long before he heard that voice again, this time over in the Old Orchard. Actually it was only a minute or two. Even then, although he felt sure that the unknown owner of that voice was no longer close at hand, Impy did not dare move. Suddenly there was a light thump right beside him. Had not Impy been too frightened to move, he would have jumped right to the wall. But he was so frightened that he was beyond jumping.

"Did you hear Spooky the Squeech Owl?" inquired Timmy the Flying Squirrel.

"Wa-wa-wa-wa was that Spooky?" chattered Impy. "I di-di-di-di-di-didn't know who it was."

"Yes, that was Spooky," replied Timmy. "I thought I would just come over here and see that you were all right. Now, if you'll take my advice, you'll go to bed."

"I'm going," replied Impy, and without another word, not even say-ing "Thank you" or "Good night," he dived down between the stones of the old stone wall.

Again came that quivering cry, and again the chills ran all over Impy the black chipmunk. How he did wish that he had gone to bed for Impy.

The next story "Reddy Fox Looks for Impy."

Jack Frost may pinch and make you ill. But fear can give a greater chill. —Mother West Wind.

"Well," said Timmy the Flying Squirrel to Impy the black chipmunk, "I must be going. You see, I have had nothing to eat as yet and I am very hungry. Of course, I had that beetle a few moments ago, but that was just an appetizer."

"Do you mean to say that you haven't eaten a thing all day?" inquired Impy.

"Do you get up and eat in the night?" asked Timmy.

"Of course not," replied Impy. "That would be a foolish thing to do. I sleep all night."

"Well, I sleep all day, so, of course, I don't get up to eat," said Timmy. "Good-bye."

Timmy jumped over to a small tree growing beside the old stone wall, ran rapidly to the top, and seemed to Impy to simply jump off into space. He saw him for just a moment against the sky and Timmy had disappeared.

STEEL MAGNATE SAYS
SKYSCRAPERS SOON TO BE BUILT IN EUROPE

G. E. J. Pictor, treasurer of the American Institute of Steel Con-struction, Inc., returned recently from Europe on the Albert Ballin, of the Hamburg-American Line, with ideas for the introduction of skyscrapers in principal cities on the Continent and Great Britain. European cities are still hampered in building tall structures by anti-quoted codes and traditions. But these are fast disappearing, he said. Mr. Pictor found everywhere, he continued, an interest in skeleton frame buildings, where each floor supports its own wall instead of the European method of building by which the weight of each wall is maintained from the foundation. In England the builders are handi-capped by a code concerning "an- cient lights" as it is called, which forbids the construction of houses above a certain height. A sentiment in favor of revising this code is growing fast in England. Mr. Pictor said, and it will pave the way toward the acceptance of sky-scrapers. "It is my belief," the steel man continued, "that economic and convenience will demand a more modern style in any rebuilding pro-gramme. To have elevators in the six and seven story buildings which can only be used for ascending and requiring the public to walk down- stairs is not only inconvenient but out of date."

TAUGHT BY TALKIES

DOCTOR DISCREDITS PRACTICE OF SERUM

President of Vancouver Anti-Vivisection Society Gives Address to Local Society

Some of the results of the administration of vaccines and serums were outlined Friday night by Dr. A. S. Murphy, of Vancouver, president of the Anti-Vivisection Society in that city and a former medical practitioner and graduate of Harvard. The address was given under the auspices of the local Anti-Vivisection Society in the New Thoroughfare, Fort Street, and was attended by many members of the society and those interested in the subject. The speaker contended that the use of vaccines and serums utterly destroyed certain tissues of the body, and was the means of developing morons and mentally unbalanced persons. "No bacteria ever did cause disease," he continued, adding that fear was the cornerstone of orthodox medicine, and were this eliminated, there would be no need for hospitals, save only for accident and orthopedic cases. He strongly denounced the disease germ theory and cited statistics showing the disastrous effects upon children of X-ray treatment, and also of the deaths resulting from vaccination.

"While practicing medicine," said Dr. Murphy, "I firmly believed that what I was doing was the right thing. Other medical men believe that they, too, are doing what is right. But I have now learned that nature is the one great remedy of disease. A healthy blood stream, clean, right living will do more to counteract illness than any medical or surgical treatment," he concluded. David Leeming was in the chair, and expressed the thanks of the audience to Dr. Murphy for his address. A petition for the abolition of vivisection was signed by many of the members of the audience.

Dr. Bryce, Mr. J. Pudney and Miss Shrapnel gave a number of musical selections which were much appreciated.

HUGE QUANTITY OF NATURAL GAS WASTED

British Expert Estimates Amount Lost From Turner Valley Wells at $25,000,000 Annually

VANCOUVER, Sept. 27.—Results obtained from the Turner Valley oil fields indicate that its future is practically assured and there will be still further development, declared A. B. Thompson, M.I.M.M., member of the British Council of Petroleum Technologists, and internationally known geologist, in an address before members of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, Vancouver branch, here this afternoon.

Mr. Thompson also believes that there are possibilities for development of the country outside the foothills.

"The Turner Valley field is not an oil field," he said, "but a gas field. The oil that is taken out is merely a spray which comes up with the gas. However, the oil is being produced and it will be an important field for a long time."

Presenting statistics which showed the production of the Turner Valley, Mr. Thompson said that the waste of gas is causing much concern in both commercial and official circles. He added that at Turner Valley there are approximately 35,000 barrels a day thrown away to the atmosphere.

HUGE WASTE
The value of oil production there is about $4,000,000 per year, he said, and approximately $25,000,000 a year is the total value of wasted gas. Those working on the field are giving their attention to the conservation of gas, said the speaker, and experts should, before long, discover some means for its saving.
